

Biographical Information for Sumio Masuda

Sumio Masuda is currently the Director of Geological Isolation Research Project for Japan Nuclear Cycle Institute (JNC). Mr. Masuda received his MA, 1969 in Industrial Chemistry from Seikei University.

- Since 1969, 10 years experience on plutonium MOX fuel development and 18 years on radioactive waste management in Power Reactor and Nuclear Fuel Development Corporation (PNC, now JNC).
- In 1979, engagement of performance assessment study of HLW disposal at University of California, Berkeley.
- Since then, mainly working in the field of HLW disposal management. During this period, managing of the First Progress Report on R&D of HLW disposal (H3) in 1992 and the Second Progress Report (H12) in 1999.